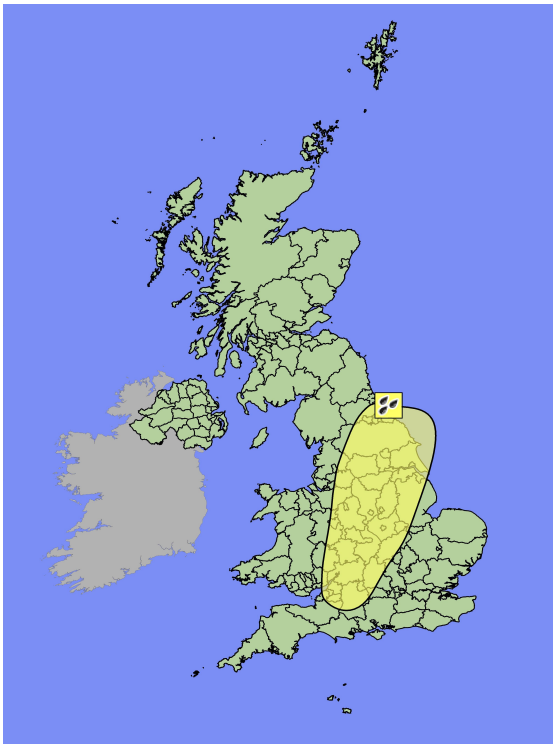
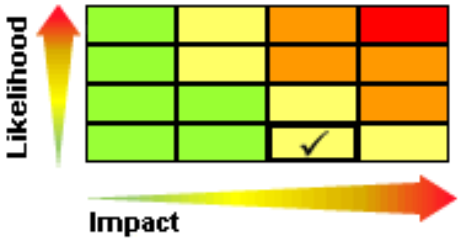
National Severe Weather Warning Service





Chief Forecasters Assessment
A frontal system is expected to be slow-moving across northern and western parts of England and Wales through Sunday. As this front encounters very high temperatures further east across the UK, isolated heavy thunderstorms may be triggered with the potential for 25 mm falling in an hour or less very locally. As often happens in such situations, things remain finely-balanced and there remains a considerable amount of uncertainty regarding the exact location of any storms.

The Met Office have issued a Yellow Warning of Rain

Valid from 14:00 on Sun, 19th Aug 2012 until 23:55 on Sun, 19th Aug 2012

Scattered thunderstorms may develop and move northwards across parts of England and perhaps southeast Wales on Sunday afternoon and evening. The public should be aware of the risk of localised surface water flooding and possible disruption to travel.
